

Hoboken's Six Policewomen Are Official Chaperones To Protect the City's Girls

Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

SIX policewomen are patrolling the parks and waterfront of Hoboken to-night, to protect girls from uniforms and vice versa. Two policewomen have been performing a similar task in New York for months, at the instance of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense.

The six feminine additions to Hoboken's "fleet" are Mrs. Charles Campbell, agent of the Legal Aid Society; Mrs. Lena Alsberg, Superintendent of the Hudson County United Aid Society; Mrs. J. J. Mutchorn, special investigator of the Hudson County Children's Court; Mrs. Emma J. Seeley and Mrs. Hazel Hyde, assistant probation officers; and Mrs. Rudolph Hensel.

For their own sakes I hope that the policewomen will face maulers more bravely than they face interviewers. They all ducked out from under yesterday, refused to have their photographs taken and insisted that their publicity must come from Judge Harry W. Lange of the Children's Court, who asked for their appointment.

"Why did you?" I asked Judge Lange when I found him in his chambers. I myself believe in policewomen (only they must not be harsh!) for many reasons, but I wondered what one had most weight with the young man who for five years has been one of the two children's judges in the State of New Jersey.

"I wish that there were police women in every town and city in this country," he declared. "But I believe there is special need of them now, and that special protection must be offered to girls, in communities where there are large numbers of men in uniform. There is a glamour about such men in the eyes of many emotional girls. Some may blame the men, some the girls, but it is a fact that recently a number of cases have been brought before me in which girls between twelve and sixteen have stayed away from home all night with a soldier or a sailor as a companion."

"The policewomen whom I asked Mayor Griffin and Commissioner McFeeley to appoint will make a special effort to prevent such occurrences in the future. These devoted women will patrol the places where girls and young men congregate; the parks and the waterfront district. The policewomen will not be called upon to do general police work, but they will act primarily as city mothers, city chaperones. They will not wear uniforms."

Will they arrest girls whom they see misbehaving? I asked. But that is exactly what the policewomen are appointed NOT to do. "Don't you think it's a shame," Judge Lange asked me earnestly, "for a little twelve-year-old girl who comes from a good home and who never has done anything wrong before, to be taken to a station house and have her name entered on the police blotter because she has got into bad company or yielded to a single wrong impulse?"

"I protect the children in my courtroom from publicity, which may be brought up against them years later when they are happily married and leading good and useful lives. But I can't control what goes on the police blotter for anybody to read. The policewomen will not arrest girls. The policewomen will take girls to their homes."

"Of course, if any girl is rebellious, the policewoman will produce her badge. Without it, the girl might tell her to mind her own business. The policewoman's procedure will be to approach any little girl who is out late at night with a man—in uniform or out of it—and who is behaving suspiciously, lingering in the park or something of that sort. If the girl cannot give a satisfactory account of herself, the policewoman will insist on taking her to her home, where she belongs. If the girl says she will go alone, the policewoman will tell her that it is too late for little girls to be travelling through the streets unaccompanied."

"AND supposing the girl's escort objects to this proceeding?" I suggested. "If he should, if any man or men attempt to interfere with the policewomen while they are on duty they will blow police whistles," Judge Lange explained. "It will not be necessary for them to carry guns. Our policemen will be within call. But I do not anticipate any such trouble. When the policewoman has taken a girl home she will interview the girl's mother. I believe that in the great majority of cases the parents are responsible for the wrongdoing of their children. The policewoman will talk to both the girl and her mother, trying to establish a basis of confidence and understanding. The girl's name and address will be taken and a friendly watch will be kept over her for a time."

"Do you agree with that woman in Massachusetts who said the other day that our girls are faced with a new yellow peril—the soldier's uniform?" I asked Judge Lange.

"I wouldn't put it as strongly as that," he said. "The other day, when I was coming home from our Liberty Loan parade, I saw two soldiers standing on a street corner. Two girls of fourteen or fifteen walking ahead of me deliberately edged in so that they jostled the men in uniform. One of them addressed a flirtatious remark to the girls. The other man said clearly, 'Oh, mind your own business and let them alone.' But the girls responded with a giggle. 'Go as far as you like!'"

"BOTH the girls and the young men are to blame, although the latter, being usually, so much older, might have decency enough not to respond even when the girls invite familiarity. Of course the real culprits are usually the parents, especially the mothers, who do not know what their daughters are doing and do not teach them what they should do."

"The mother who tells me that she does not know that her twelve-year-old daughter has been misconducting herself—sometimes for a year or more—is a self-convinced neglecter. The trouble with most of the incorrigible children with whom I have to deal is that they have incorrigible parents."

"I hope," Judge Lange concluded, with a smile, "that the policewomen will not catch a single girl! I do not mean that I want the girls to evade them, but I hope that, warned by reading of the appointment of policewomen, the girls will behave themselves."

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezone, the ether discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

Ask any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rub one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.—Advt.

MOULIN ROUGE OPENS.

Dancing and Dining Resort Will Be a Favorite "Drop In" Place.

The Moulin Rouge, Broadway's newest dancing and dining place, was formally opened last night with a capacity crowd present. It is located at Broadway and 48th Street, in the same building with the Palais Royal. Old Boag is the manager.

The place is attractively decorated in blue and old gold, and there is a complete air of Bohemia in it. It has an oval floor for dancing. Between dances an entertainment is given, consisting of European novelty acts and Hens and Bennett, expert modern dancers. A large orchestra is in attendance. All its features combine to make the Moulin Rouge one of Broadway's most attractive "drop in" spots. It is under the same general management as the Palais Royal.

What a pity she doesn't know Resinol would clear her skin

'She would be a pretty girl, if it wasn't for that pimply, blotchy complexion!' But the regular use of Resinol Soap, aided at first by a little Resinol Ointment, would probably make it clear, fresh and charming. If a poor skin is your handicap, begin using the Resinol treatment, and see how quickly it improves.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are excellent, too, for the care of the hair, dispelling dandruff and keeping the hair alive and lustrous. All druggists sell Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment (two sizes).

Doctor Says Crying Need Of the Woman of Today Is More Iron In Her Blood

TO PUT STRENGTH IN HER NERVES AND COLOR IN HER CHEEKS

Any Woman Who Tires Easily, is Nervous or Irritable, or Looks Pale, Haggard and Worn Should Have Her Blood Examined for Iron Deficiency.

Administration of Nuxated Iron in Clinical Tests Gives Most Astonishing Youthful Strength and Makes Women Look Years Younger.

"There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy checked women without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author. "In my recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Failure to do so is a crime against the health of the nation. The skin of the anemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lose tone, the brain fails and the clear lack of iron, and often they become memory, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks."

"In the most common foods of America—the starchy, sugary, fatty syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, and crackers, macaroni, spaghetti, tomatoes, apples, raisins, degenerated cornmeal—the iron is lacking. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods. The food on the waste pipe in which our vegetables are cooked, and the water in which our meat is boiled, are responsible for another grave iron loss."

"Therefore, if you wish to get the most out of what you eat, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

"As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run down, instead of doing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, prevent it becoming organic in thousands of cases and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved."

Tips to Voters

No. 3.

IN this campaign a vote for MORRIS HILLQUIT, Socialist Candidate for Mayor, is a vote for

Free Speech A Free Press Freedom of Opinion

His candidacy is a direct protest against the attacks now being conducted, under cover of the war, on the constitutional liberties which our forefathers won.

MORRIS HILLQUIT has defended these liberties in his speeches here. He has appeared before the Post Office Department in Washington to insist on freedom of the press.

MORRIS HILLQUIT says: "Progress can never come, truth can never be established by the stifling of opinions."

Mr. Mitchell opposes free speech. Under his administration peaceable citizens have been clubbed and arrested for defending Democracy.

As for Judge Hylan, he is dumb on this, as on all vital issues.

Free Speech A Free Press Freedom of Opinion

All our great statesmen from Jefferson down have called these principles the keystone of our liberties. They are guaranteed in our Constitution. When they go Democracy is dead.

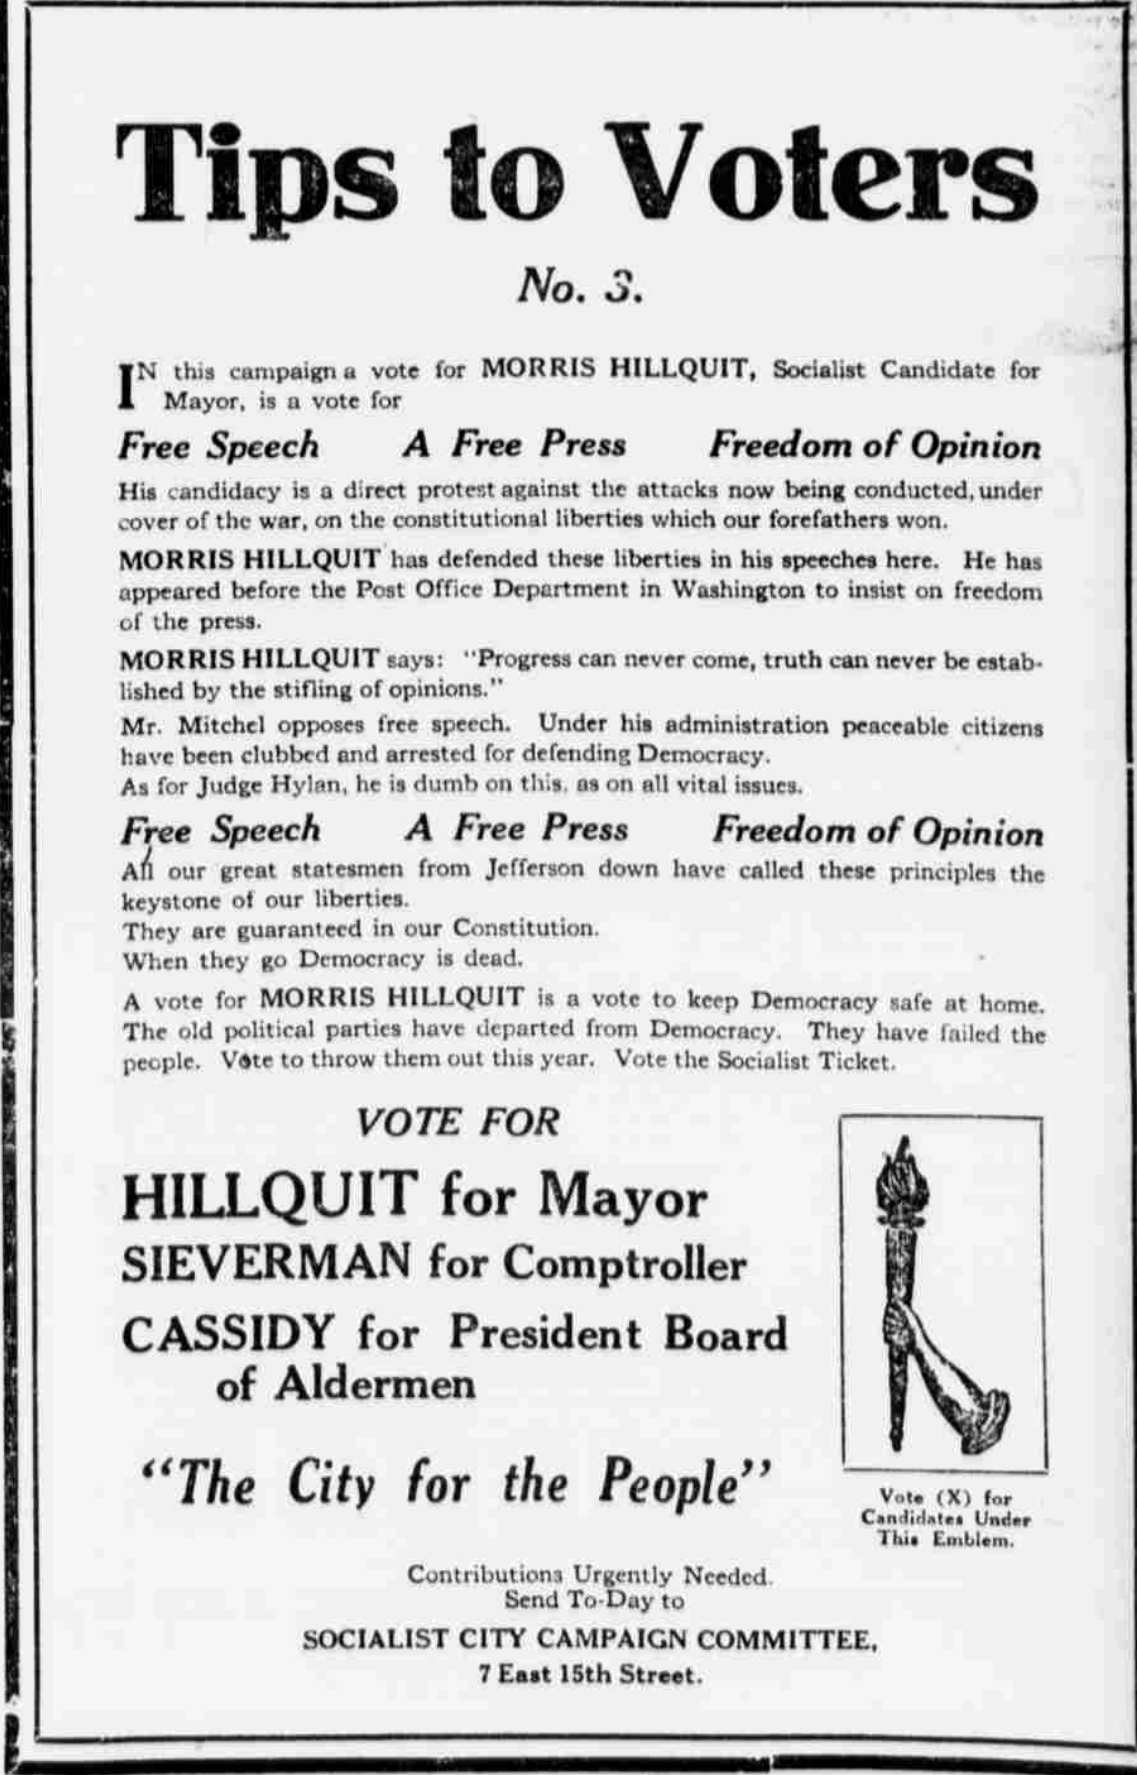

A vote for MORRIS HILLQUIT is a vote to keep Democracy safe at home. The old political parties have departed from Democracy. They have failed the people. Vote to throw them out this year. Vote the Socialist Ticket.
